U.S. Patent and Trademark Office PTO-326 (Rev. 04-01) Offi	ice Action Summary	Part of Paper No. 30

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103© and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 21, 25 and 37 to 96 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakajima et al. in view of Yamada (Jp 5-109,737).

The Nakajima et al reference teaches a method of silicon crystal growth. On a substrate, a catalyst for growth is applied. Then an amorphous layer is deposited onto the metal, the resulting structure is then annealed in order to crystallize the silicon. The silicon can be patterned to form island. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the etching and use of a gettering agent. However, the Yamada reference teaches ion implanting phosphorus or argon ions in to an amorphous silicon and then crystallization of the silicon. The implanted ions act as getters and cause metal to move to the gettering areas and the gettering areas are removed, note entire reference. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Nakajima et al process by the teachings of the Yamada reference to etch and getter in order to remove the metal catalyst which lower the output of the device formed on such layers.

Response to Applicant's Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed October 28, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants' argument concerning the translation of the priority document is noted.

However, the translation does not support or teach the entirely claimed invention. There is no teaching to have the process done on any other material then silicon in the translation. The instant claims include other semiconducting materials. Further, some of the instant claims are limited solely to argon implanting. This is not recited in the translation. Thus, the translation does not fully teach the instant claims and thus does not overcome the rejection over the prior art of record.

The double patenting rejection has been overcome and is withdrawn by the examiner.

The rejection over the Yamada et al reference is maintained for the reasons of record as the reference does teach ion implanting a gettering agent and removal of harmful materials to device formations.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
